The wonders of Pompeii

Italia, 13.03.2025 [ENA]

Pompeii, the eternal city buried by the fury of Mount Vesuvius in 79 AD, continues to reveal its secrets. A unique archaeological treasure in the world, where time stood still, offering an extraordinary glimpse into daily life in ancient Rome. Each excavation brings new discoveries.

Pompeii, located in the Campania region near the modern city of Naples, is one of the most famous archaeological sites in the world. Getting there is easy: by train, using the Circumvesuviana from Naples or Sorrento, getting off at the "Pompei Scavi-Villa dei Misteri" station, or by car, taking the A3 Napoli-Salerno motorway. Founded in the 7th century BC, the city was a thriving commercial and residential center of ancient Rome until the eruption of Mount Vesuvius in 79 AD buried it under a blanket of ash and pumice, preserving it intact for centuries.

The excavations of Pompeii, which began in the 18th century, have brought to light an astonishingly well-preserved city. Its paved streets, temples, theaters, and baths tell the story of daily life in ancient times. The noble houses, such as the Villa of the Mysteries or the House of the Faun, amaze with their vivid frescoes and intricate mosaics. Recent discoveries, like the thermopolium with traces of food still visible or the bodies of inhabitants frozen in their final moments, add new pieces to the historical puzzle.

Pompeii is not just an archaeological site; it is a journey through time. Walking among its ruins is an emotional experience that makes you feel part of a millennia-old story. Come to Pompeii, let yourself be enchanted by its beauty, and discover the allure of a lost but never-forgotten civilization.
